

LAWEEKLY

LAWEEKLY

Blogs

oops! SUSHI & SAKE BAR

GREAT FOOD GREAT DRINK CATERING

NEWS » CALENDAR » MUSIC » RESTAURANTS » ARTS » FILM » BEST OF » PROMO » CLASSIFIEDS » MMJ Search
LA RESTAURANTS | FOOD BLOG | FIND A RESTAURANT | HAPPY HOURS | DEALS | DINING NEWSLETTER | GET MOBILE | RESTAURANT ADS |

Reintroducing... BEST of L.A.

Squid Ink

TOP BLOG STORIES

- Trois Mec Crew to Open Petit Trois Next Door
- Tom Bergin's Tavern Reopens This
- Vending Machines Must Now Post Calorie

Events & Festivals

Hayudas & Tequila at Taste of Mexico

By Elina Shatkin Fri., Dec. 3 2010 at 11:30 AM Write Comment

Categories: Events & Festivals, Mexican Cuisine

Like Share Tweet 5 Subm Pocket 0 0

Guzzle & Nosh

Los Angeles, which seems to offer every iteration and regional culinary specialty of Mexico, may not need a festival like Taste of Mexico, but between need and desire lies a vast gulf. In this case, it's filled with tequila. And mescal and beer. And Oaxacan hayudas, Guerreran ceviche verde and over 30 other regional Mexican dishes.

The inaugural Taste Of Mexico festival debuts tomorrow at St. Vibiana's featuring the food of La Casita Mexicana, Guelagueta, Frida and La Monarca. (If the galletas de novia or dulce de leche cake from the Santa Monica La Monarca location, which we previewed earlier this week, whetted your appetite this is the perfect chance to try them.)

Tickets aren't cheap ($75), but they come with unlimited tastings of food and booze. Highlights include the huilacoche tamalitos from La Casita, the hayudas with chapulines from Guelagueta and three regional flans from La Monarca (Mexico City, Nuevo Leon and Yucatan).

Now Trending

- DineLA Restaurant Week 2014 Coming in January
- 2013 San Gabriel Valley Restaurant Openings and Closings
- A New Year's Resolution for the Restaurants of Los Angeles: Answer Your Damn Phones!

Stories | Conversations

Save up to 90% Daily.

voice DAILY DEALS
VoiceDailyDeals.com
View All Deals

Around The Web

- Mariscos Altata in West Phoenix: Great Eats Amid a Cacophony Phoenix New Times
- Soups to get you through the winter