Brit Wit at BAFTAs
The message of solidarity at the Royal Albert Hall was loud and clear at the 71st BAFTA Film Awards. The Time's Up movement was mentioned throughout the evening, with most stars wearing pins and black gowns, except for best actress winner Frances McDormand (2), who ignored the dress code, noting: "I have a little trouble with compliance." Other big winners of the night included best actor Gary Oldman (4) and rising star Daniel Kaluuya (7). — RAMONA SAVISS

ATL in L.A.

The stars of Atlanta Robbin Season (aka season two) arrived at the Ace Hotel for the FX dramedy's premiere. Lakeith Stanfield (13), who showed up in a ski mask, teased that the sophomore run offers a bit of horror, and creator/star Donald Glover (13) agreed it would be "a little scarier." An after-party followed at Clifton's. — BRYN ELISE SANDBERG

Chowing Down

Hollywood stars and art world luminaries celebrated 50 years of Mr Chow alongside legendary restaurateur Michael Chow (9) at his massive artist studio and gallery space south of L.A. "I have always treated it as theater," Chow explained of his restaurant empire. And his party was certainly stagey, as guests wore replicas of his signature black glasses and tore up the dance floor, while daughter China Chow (10) handed out Beboe marijuana vaporizers. — MARC MALIKIN

Hollywood's Beef

More than 600 guests tied on bibs to feast on 600 pounds of filet mignon at the Vibiana dinner in support of the L.A. Food Bank. The meat-centric meal was hosted by Simpsons exec producer Matt Selman, ABC Studios' Cort Cass (16), comedy writer Eric Wareheim and Redbird and Vibiana owners Amy Knoll Fraser and chef Neal Fraser. — R.S.
